Portfolio Managers Market Commentary

November marked a shift toward a more muted and consolidative phase for global markets, with global equities posting month end losses. After a strong run through early autumn, investors eased off the accelerator as concerns around stretched valuations - particularly in U.S. mega-cap technology stocks - prompted a reassessment of risk appetite. However, the softer tone reflected not a deterioration in fundamentals, but a collective pause as markets evaluated the sustainability of recent momentum.

In the United States, equities cooled after an extended rally led by the "Magnificent Seven". Corporate fundamentals remained broadly supportive, with 81% of S&P 500 companies beating earnings expectations in Q3, yet investors grew more cautious about the narrow market leadership and elevated valuations of large-cap growth names. The resumption of economic data following the end of the government shutdown painted a mixed picture: core inflation continued to ease, strengthening expectations for another Federal Reserve rate cut in December, while consumer-spending indicators suggested a gradual softening in demand. These dynamics encouraged modest rotation into defensive sectors but ultimately left the S&P 500 down 0.7%, in GBP.

European equities proved comparatively resilient, finishing the month up 0.7%, in sterling. Sluggish economic activity - particularly in Germany's industrial sector - remained a headwind, but Europe's lower exposure to high-valuation technology names helped cushion returns. Stabilising energy prices further supported sentiment, allowing the region to deliver steadier performance versus the U.S. UK equities also benefitted from a lack of technology stocks, while the region's exposure to more defensive sectors helped dampen some more negative consumer sentiment.

Emerging markets faced a challenging backdrop, underperforming developed markets as softer global technology performance and renewed concerns around China weighed on returns. Weaker-than-expected Chinese industrial production dampened confidence, while regions more heavily exposed to the semiconductor cycle, notably South Korea and Taiwan, saw heightened volatility. India remained a relative bright spot, helped by robust domestic activity.

Japanese equities also suffered, declining 1.6%, as rising geopolitical tensions with China temporarily dampened sentiment.

Across fixed income markets, falling yields provided support. Softer inflation across the U.S. and eurozone, helped sovereign bonds rally, with U.S. Treasuries leading, up 0.5%. In the UK, sterling bonds experienced elevated levels of mid-month volatility as news flow surrounding the budget drove market jitters – come month end though, returns across the UK bond market were up 0.1%.

As the year draws to a close, disinflation trends, central bank policy paths, and global growth resilience remain the dominant themes. In this environment, regional equity diversification and high-quality fixed income continue to play a central role in building resilient portfolios.

Against this backdrop, portfolios declined, primarily due to weakness across U.S., Emerging Market and Asian equities. Sustainability-tilted strategies generally lagged their broader regional benchmarks, particularly in Europe and the U.S., though Japanese sustainable equities proved more resilient. Thematic exposures were mixed, with healthcare technology delivering strong gains while water-related strategies softened. Fixed income contributed positively across all holdings, supported by falling developed-market bond yields and stability from short-duration allocations. Within alternatives, rising gold prices and strengthening listed real estate added further support, helping to offset some of the equity-driven weakness.
