Investment Adviser's Market Commentary

Chris Ainscough

Equity markets extended their recovery in August, with major indices including the S&P 500, Dow Jones, Nasdaq, and FTSE 100 reaching new record highs. The rally was supported by a solid second-quarter earnings season and stronger-than-expected economic data, particularly in the US, where consumer spending remained resilient and growth was revised higher. Inflation also remains contained for now, failing to show significant impact from recent tariff changes, helping maintain a constructive market tone.

President Trump's "reciprocal tariff" strategy continues to reshape global trade dynamics. While many tariffs were set at moderate levels, some countries - including India and Brazil - have faced more severe penalties due to geopolitical and energy-related disputes. Although a US-EU agreement offered some relief, broader trade tensions continue to weigh on sentiment.

Political unpredictability also remains a challenge. Trump's attempt to dismiss a Federal Reserve governor has raised concerns about central bank independence and its impact on monetary policy. Markets are now anticipating a rate cut in September, following dovish signals from Fed Chair Jerome Powell, though inflation remains persistent and the outlook for interest rates is still unclear.

In the UK, economic momentum has slowed, with rising unemployment and a cooling housing market prompting calls for looser monetary policy. The upcoming Budget will be a key moment for the Labour government, with markets watching closely for signs of fiscal discipline and growth support.

Overall, despite elevated valuations and ongoing uncertainty, markets have responded positively to strong corporate results and signs of economic resilience. While risks remain, particularly around trade and policy, the backdrop for investors is improving. With earnings holding up and central banks signalling support, there is reason for cautious optimism heading into the autumn.

Fund In Focus

Atlas Global Infrastructure Fund invests in a concentrated portfolio of high-quality listed infrastructure companies across developed markets. The fund is exposed to both regulated assets (such as utilities) and user-pay assets (like toll roads, airports, and rail), with a focus on long-duration, predictable cash flows and monopoly-like characteristics. The strategy is index-agnostic, ESG-integrated and designed to deliver real returns above inflation. The portfolio is actively managed to optimise risk-adjusted returns and has delivered robust performance in 2025, outperforming its inflation-plus benchmark.
